Is this good Chouta? part 2

It's been about 2 weeks, and we've tried again! We tried to take community suggestions into account. In particular, people mentioned different kinds of flatbread, but it felt like it was leaning somewhere in the Indian neighborhood.

Beef mini meatballs with barley grain filler. This actually gave the meat a nice texture.

Naan bread, slightly under fried as to be pliable. Triangles with soft corners folded well.

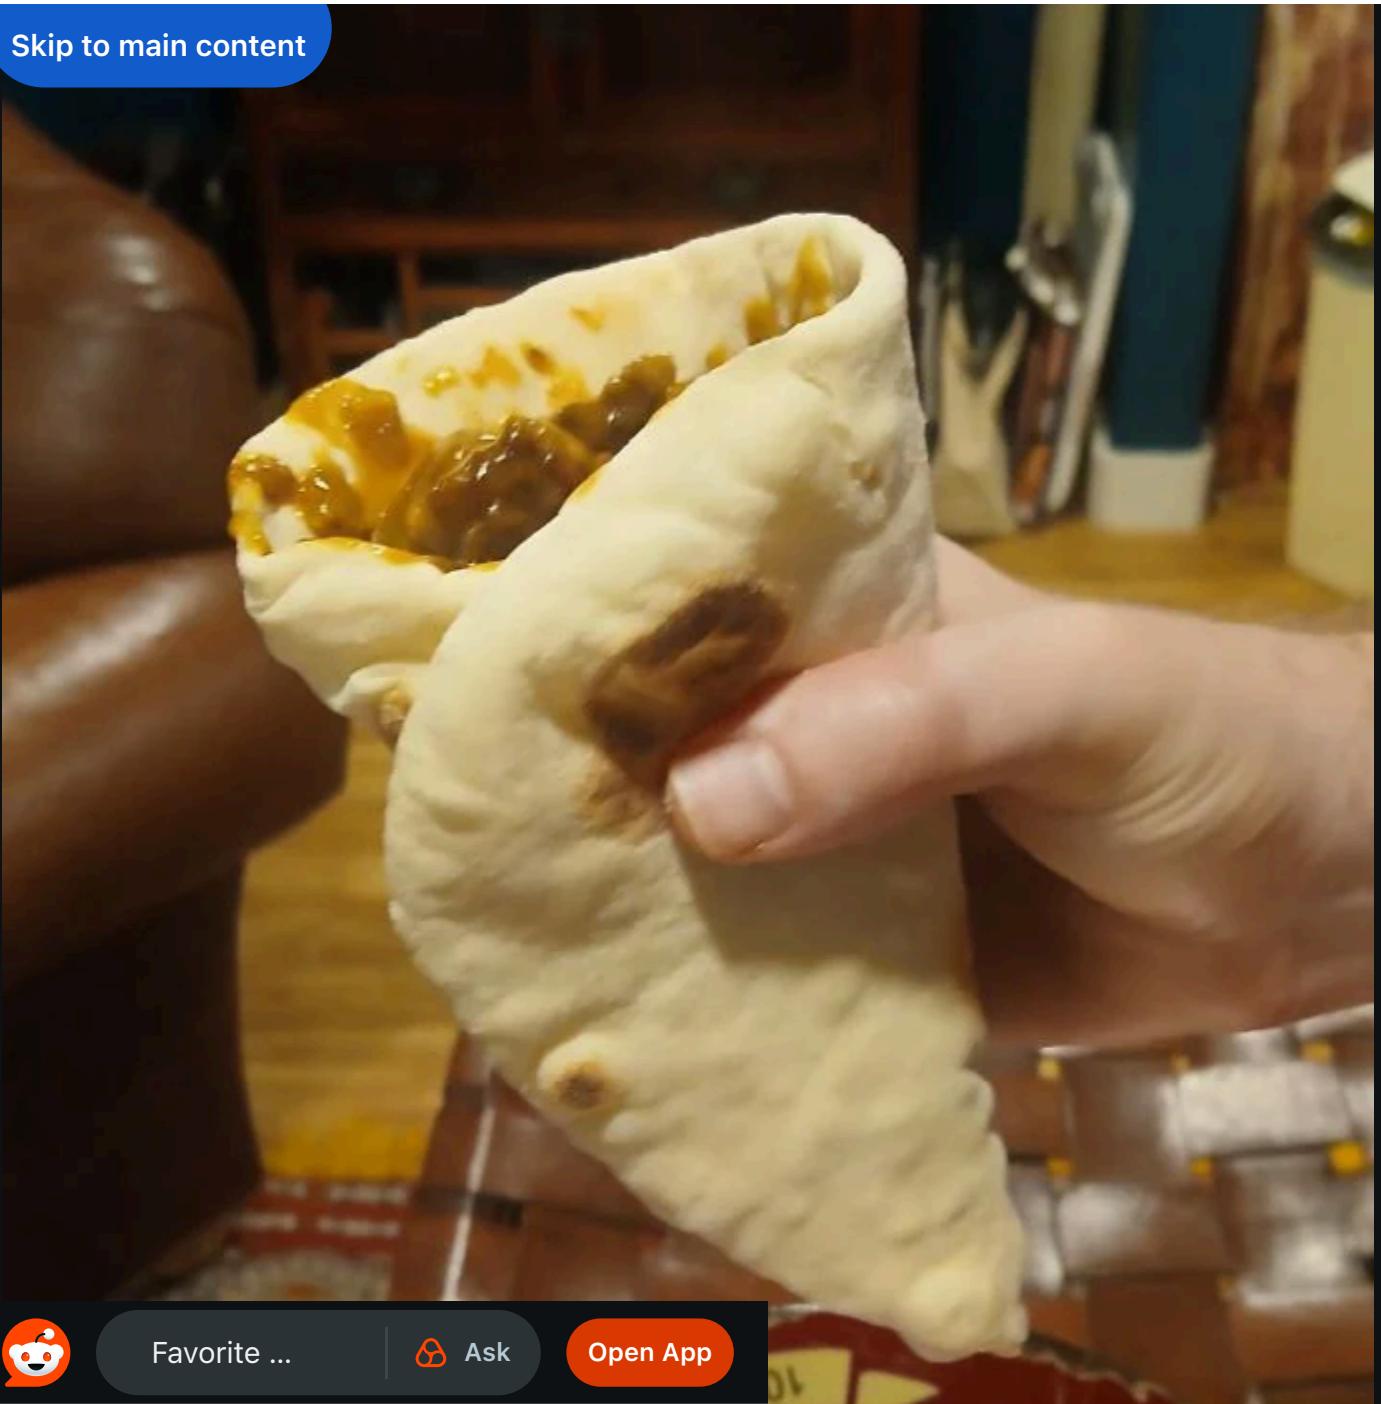

Sauce is a simple curry sauce (from the box). As to be flavorful, but not spicy.

So, is this good Chouta?

Looks yummy. Personally would love to see more greens in the fillings, but I suppose not many plants in Roshar are green and edible, especially in Herdaz in the east

PS. Censor that safehand on the 3rd pic

We did actually have broccoli with it.

Damn, I knew there was a reason I should have NSFW'd this post!

That look seems about right to me. I was kinda thinking like kabob, but in naan, so yeah.

Currently 1/3 of the way through WaT. I totally had been picturing it as clam chowder all this time, right up until someone brings it as a sandwich to Adolin. Even then, I was picturing like a lobster roll.

I feel like my innocence has been destroyed now that I realize it's just a curry wrap that has nothing to do with chowder, clam or otherwise.

I mean, the Rock variant has kremling claws in it. So you're not so far off base. Put a spicy cream sauce in it, and I could see that working.
